We help make change happen faster for better health and health care

Who we are

The Health Quality Council (HQC) is an independent organization committed to accelerating the pace of improvement in health and health care in Saskatchewan so residents can live healthy lives and have access to high quality health care.

What we do

By using our skills in quality improvement, measurement (research and analytics), collaboration, and skill-building, we partner with and support health organizations, government, and community organizations across the province to drive progress toward better health and better care for all.

We place our energy where we believe we can use our skills to make the most impact. Our work is informed by citizens, communities, and shared system priorities impacting health.

We focus our work in three key service areas:

Measurement and Analytics

By asking difficult questions, challenging the status quo, and finding answers to the questions that matter, we put vital information into the hands of people who can make change happen through policies or through how health care is delivered.

Quality Improvement

Collaboration

We create or contribute to environments where stakeholders work together on shared outcomes. We offer our skills in quality improvement, research and analytics, and facilitation to help stakeholders make change happen faster in health and health care.

Skill-building

We develop skills in our partners so they can confidently make change happen in their fields. This allows us to support the development of a culture and mindset of quality improvement.
