ABOUT THE COURSE

The Community Quality Improvement Collective is a virtual six-month program aimed at introducing teams across all sectors to quality improvement methodology. You'll gain a new approach to problem solving and expand your existing skills to continuously improve in both your day-to-day and long-term goals.

FORMAT & TIME COMMITMENT

The Collective applies a mix of theory and application to a real-world problem of your choosing. You can expect to spend approximately eight hours per month on the various learning & coaching sessions, workshops, and program work. By the end of the program, you and your team will have built a quality improvement toolbox you can apply to future work and you'll be able to:

- Use data to identify and understand your current state.
- Use the quality improvement process to solve problems.
- Understand the role of change management in each of the program's components.

COST

There is no cost to participate, all you have to do is register!

WHO SHOULD ATTEND

This wave of The Collective is open to teams in Saskatchewan involved in the well-being and support of older adults and their communities. If you:

- have ideas you want to test in your organization;
- are interested in learning about ways to engage others in ideas/changes;
- are interested in measuring the success of a specific process or idea;
- want to learn how to interpret data to implement meaningful change;
- or want to leverage existing data to demonstrate progress;

then The Collective is for you!
